You need no information relative to its history, but others may desire to know something of the motives which induced you to seek the information, and me to attempt to give it. The Commissioners of Emigration were organized under circumstances of peculiar difficulty. An immense flood of emigration set upon our shores in consequence of the famine in Ireland, and civil commotion in other portions of Europe. The emigrants were mostly very poor, they were landed in a state of great destitution, and many were suffering from severe disease. This state of things could not be adequately met by private charity or by any existing institution. In this emergency, the legislature of 1847, organized the Board of Commissioners of Emigration, granting them funds barely sufficient for the ordinary support of the masses who were seeking relief from their hands. It was impossible to hire buildings, the fears of the community lest contagion might reach them from the asylum, imperatively demanded that it should be placed in an isolated position. These circumstance requiring a large outlay, at once, and without delay, imposed a necessity on the Commissioners to practice the most rigid economy in all the details of their management. Among other plans of economy, the attention of the Commissioners was directed to the best mode of feeding the persons under their care, but nothing could be found in books to guide or assist them in...
