I was born on 30th September, in the year 1794, in the town of Queensbury, Washington county, state of New York. My father, Asa Brown, belonged to the denomination of Friend Quakers. His business was that of a farmer. I worked with him chiefly until I was twenty years of age. During my boyhood I was much deprived of the benefits of education, owing to my fathers removing from place to place, in new settlements, they affording him greater facilities for the piu chase of cheap land than older ones. By these means he was enabled to have his children settle around, him. Being thus brought up, far from the abodes of the religious sectaries of the day, my ideas of religion were just those which are naturally instilled into the mind by the statements of Scripture, where no priestcraft exists to pervert them, diminish their force, or cloud their meaning, consequently I believed in the Bible just as it read, where the self-evident rendering of the context did not prove it figurative or parabolic. The idea that revelation from God was unattainable in this age, or that the ancient gifts of the Gospel had ceased for ever, never entered my head, until I gathered the notion from the creeds of...
