Excerpt: . . . to Dunn by the deed of January 8th, 1916, and recorded January 10th, 1916. But however that may be, there is nothing whatever in the case to show that the sheriff had not levied on what was claimed to be Dunns interest in that property and as he contended that both of the judgments were void he had the right to seek the aid of a Court of equity to have them declared null and void and to contest Wilmers right under them to levy on that or any other property. There is therefore no estoppel by reason of what was done in that case. It follows from what we have said that it is unnecessary to discuss other questions, and the decree of the lower Court must be affirmed. Decree affirmed, the appellant to pay the costs. A plaintiff had been injured by the fall of a heavy bale of hay from the defendants warehouse, and at the time of the trial, about a year after the accident, there was evidence that after and since the injury the plaintiff was subject to violent pains in his head, and he complained that he could not attend to business or concentrate his thoughts; that he could not dictate well, but had to write out first in longhand and then read of f to the stenographer, and that occasionally he had violent pains in his back; it was held, that upon such evidence the court was not...
