Createspace, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 203 x 133 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Home Style Indian Cooking Demystified With an amazing compilation of over 100 delectable Indian dishes, many of which you can't get in any Indian restaurant for love or for money, this is unlike any other Indian Cook book. What this book focuses on is what Indians eat every day in their homes. It then in an easy step-by-step manner makes this mysterious, never disclosed, Home Style Indian cooking accessible to anyone with a rudimentary knowledge of cooking and a stomach for adventure. Prasenjeet Kumar, the corporate lawyer turned gourmand, in this second book of his series How to Cook everything in a Jiffy explores the contours of what sets Indian Home Style food so apart from restaurant food . In his uniquely semi-autobiographical style, he starts with his quest for Indian food in London, and wonders why his European friends don't have such a strange debate between Home Style and Restaurant food. He learns then that in Europe, you usually look up to the versions created in restaurants and by Michelin Star chefs of say Roast Turkey and try to replicate it at home. But, in India, you almost look down upon the versions of say, yellow dal peddled by restaurants and very condescendingly declare your own Home Style versions to be less oily or more tasteful and decidedly superior in any case. Digging a little deeper, he learns that the whole style of restaurant cooking in India is diametrically opposed to what is practised in Indian homes with respect to the same dish. In brief, the author found Home Style food to be different because: One, it was cooked from scratch, from fresh ingredients;...
