WATER POLLUTION: POLLUTANT TRADING COULD REDUCE COMPLIANCE COSTS IF UNCERTAINTIES ARE RESOLVED: RCED-92-153

BiblioGov. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 24 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.1in. Pursuant to a congressional request, GAO provided information on the cost-effectiveness of pollutant trading, focusing on: (1) projects using pollutant trading to reduce pollution at specific locations; (2) potential barriers to wider use of pollutant trading; and (3) Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) efforts to implement a nationwide trading program. GAO found that: (1) pollutant trading has been confined to four localized efforts to address water pollution; (2) three projects provide for trading between point and nonpoint sources, and the fourth project permits trading only between point sources; (3) in the one trade so far, a point source installed sewers to control nonpoint-source pollution and received a discharge credit; (4) impediments to wider use of pollutant trading include its ambiguous legal status under the Clean Water Act and complexities surrounding a workable trading systems; (5) institutional structures, adequate data, and enforcement mechanisms are needed to establish wider use of pollutant trading; and (6) EPA has begun to address barriers to trading and is considering drafting guidelines to encourage pollutant trading. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
