The best results are to be obtained only by certain men in various departments of medicine, so that one fits nicely into the other. This is pre-eminently the age of the expert and the specialist. The prescribing of glasses is the business of the oculist, and it should be justly considered so by the medical profession. Spirochetes in the Urine in Trench Fever.--A. T. Nankivell and C. EE. Sundell (Lancet, November 3, 1917) examined ninety-nine specimens of urine from twenty-six patients with trench fever, finding spirochetes twenty-nine times in more than 300 films. They never found spirochetes in films made from normal men or from those ill with other conditions. The spirochetes were found as early as the first twenty-four hours of the disease, but most commonly the men were seen only in the relapses when spirochetes were not infrequently found. In many...
