Cockfighting and quailfighting are common, and in some of the cities we --tied to her back. see men kneeling down on the streets about little bowls in which fighting crickets are placed. The little insects are urged on to fight by being tickled with straws, and they fight until they are dead. A good fighting cricket is valuable, high bets being made upon the results of such contests. One of the most striking features of China noticed during our tour is the terrible poverty of the lower classes of the people. The beggars exist everywhere in large numbers. Children are sometimes stolen and made blind in order that they may beg more successfully. The beggars of each city have unions or clubs, to which they all belong. They divide the city into sections, each member having his own street or...
